CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

"And the girl had nothing but the sun and the snowdrops!" said Peter. "Nothing, nothing, nothing!"

Peter said: "It is suggested that Elmer, Oswald, know the girl's death would be taken for good poison. Now did she propose to explain the fact that only one member of the party was affected?"

"The interesting thing in the case of probability," said Peter, "is that the two pots of path—both with poisons in them—were taken by Mary."

Passivity pressure here was regarded as particularly significant in view of the fact that the Finnish delegation to Moscow headed by the Finnish Minister of Foreign Affairs, A. R. Rönkä, was expected to leave for Moscow on Jan. 10.

Russian circles here do not deny this possibility of peace talks with Finland, but they say there has been nothing definite. Finnish Ambassador to Sweden, A. Rönkä, is expected to leave for Moscow on Jan. 10.

GEORGE McMANUS

ONE day in 1903, George McManus was given a hot tip by a bookbinder he had befriended: "Get Hamburg Bells." George had $100 saved up toward getting out of St. Louis. He bet $100 on bells' nose. She won, at 20 to 1. Within the week he left for New York, gambling on getting a better job as cartoonist. He did: in fact, several. In his present one, as creator of "Bringing Up Father," he is one of world's highest paid artists. His Jiggs and Maggie characters are the best known Americans in the world—in 21 years they have come to live their lives in newspapers in 11 countries and speak 27 languages, including Chinese and Icelandic. No other comic strip has enjoyed the popularity so widely with readers for so long.

A McManus self-portrait.

George was born in St. Louis. His father was a shoemaker. His mother (above) lived to enjoy his success and fame.

George first showed signs of becoming an artist when this age and attending grammar school in St. Louis. He quit school at 13 to work as a newspaper office boy and cartoonist at 15. At 17, he was drawing regular cartoons for the newspaper.

Now he has a degree—Doctor of Humane Letters, from Rosenda College, citing him as a "distinguished evidence who for many years has held a professorship of good cheer in the university of the world."

Observers also declared, "His insight into the simple yet normal patterns of human behavior has made his characters unforgettable and his drawings approximations of reality in an age of superficially and despair." George relaxes in his studio while waiting a cartoon idea by reading philosophy. The screen is decorated with a notebook-cover collection, one of his hobbies. An admirer gave him a $5000 Persian rug with a Jiggs and Maggie design.

"Bringing Up Father" became a feature in 700 newspapers, the subject of a series of plays, a movie, a child of books. Jiggs was the first cartoon character to be the symbol (chorus) of a fighting arm, 11th Bombing Squadron, U. S. Army Air Corps.

Other McManus hobbies are collecting American glassware, of which he has hundreds of rare pieces, and hardwood walking sticks. George's mouse ears are no longer fashionable. When carrying one, he is sometimes asked, "What's the matter? Got rheumatism?"

George leaves his posthumous apartment in Sunset Towers, Hollywood, each week-day morning at 8 to work five hours in an office-studio in Beverly Hills.

With this hand, these implements and his genius for comic creation, McManus amasses an estimated 20,000,000 daily. He filed out 20 different strips before he hit his first great success, "The New Yorker," whose editors became national by words. The strip influenced George, too. He married Miss Florence Bergers, New Yorker. He started "Bringing Up Father" in 1910. It was suggested by a popular play, "The Rising Generation," about a gut-rich-quick family.

George, who has no children of his own, visits hospitals, orphanages and schools to entertain youngsters with drawings; and devotes much of his income to secret charities. His late brother Charlie was also a cartoonist; his brother Leo is an art department manager. Father George Jr. wanted to be an artist himself.

Geat, Rying? Not for McManus! He's antipathetic to exercise and speed, and expects to outlive all his friends (he's 55) who indulge in them. His pleasure is relaxing beside his radio with a cigar, and Man-Friday Ben, a Filipino, bringing in tall ones at intervals; or joining his cronies for an evening of out-of-series talk. He averages 20 cigars a day.

New McManus Prepares Cured Beef and Cabbage:

Seek the briskest in cold water overnight, to remove sharpness of salt and soften the meat. Slice the meat in accordance with number of persons to be served. Start the corned beef cooking in enough cold water to cover its bulk slowly 2 1/2 hours. When beef has boiled one hour, put in a quartered head of cabbage, a few undismitted carrots, potatoes and whole onions, and add one whole clove, a few bay leaves and whole peppercorns. When done, serve hot.

to Jiggs a carbon-copy of McManus himself, as has been often stated. Well, McManus does dislike orientation, he believes in taking things easy and people as they are; and corned beef & cabbage is his favorite dish. C. T. & Co. first became nationally popular due to "Bringing Up Father." The McManus recipe is accepted as standard at the Waldorf-Astoria and Joe's Beef Shop. It is given above.

Save View is Held War Will Last 2 to 5 Years Longer

Halifax, Jan. 16 (CP)—Experts of the British cabinet today said the war will last two to five years longer than they had expected.

Mr. J. G. Macmillan, acting leader of the House of Commons, told a group of members of the House that the war would last longer than they had expected.

Two estimates (one from the British cabinet and one from the German military staff) were given. The British estimate was that the war would last two to five years longer than they had expected. The German estimate was that the war would last three to six years longer than they had expected.

The British estimate was based on the fact that the German military staff had estimated that the war would last two to three years longer than they had expected. The German estimate was based on the fact that the British cabinet had estimated that the war would last one to two years longer than they had expected.

OTTAWA GUARDS LONDON'S FLORA 150 YEARS OLD

Ottawa, Jan. 15.—(C.P.)—Flora that blossomed 150 years ago in fields now covered by the buildings of old London have been presented to the National Museum of Canada as a memorial to an English lawyer who spent his holidays and week-ends patiently collecting, cataloguing and mounting the plants he loved.

The collection was presented to the National Museum by J. H. Chiffolleau, M. C., Ottawa. It was the work of his great-grandfather and was brought to Canada by his father who added to it the flowers he gathered in Newfoundland and the Maritimes.

A. S. Penick, national museum biologist in charge of the National Herbarium, said the collection was unique in Canada. Along with it came a copy of Flora Londinensis by his six pains covered by hand and one of the most-cited studies of the botanical world.

The flowers carefully pressed to the long pages of 20 bound volumes represent varieties which have vanished from the London area. The land they occupied had either been built over or the flowers killed by the proximity of factories belching smoke and fumes.

From Old England.

In 1892, the collector on a day's walk from his city home was able to collect specimens from "fields covered with them," daffodils, narcissus, tulips and wild pansies. In 1900 years after 1891 he collected thousands of flowers and seeds were carefully classified and catalogued. The collector had a cabinet, specimens to fill his books of flowers, with drawers for little seeds to be packed. The cabinet was presented to the museum and his great-grandfather's collection at present.

"These London specimens will last for hundreds of years and all can be identified by botanical even if the detailed descriptions accompanying them are lost," Mr. Penick said.

"The plan is to have flower collections placed on display at the National Museum in the future, with the pages open to show how their color and shape has been preserved because of the patient care of the collector who collected them over a century ago."

Lemuel J. Smith Doesn't Look Much Like A Soldier

LEMUEL SMITH looks about as much like a soldier as your favorite easy chair. He probably wouldn't know one end of a tank from the other, and he hasn't had a uniform on since he quit going to lodge regular.

BUT Mr. Lemuel J. Smith — when he isn't busy on the school board or the Community Chest — is doing a mighty big job of defending his country. Make no mistake about that. The government knows it. We know it, and we think it is high time you knew it, too.

YOU see, Smith is a man you take pretty much for granted. He is a retail merchant, and there is over half a million of him in this vast country of ours. Some running stores a block square. Others with shops just a skip-and-a-jump from wall to wall. Big and little, that's an awful lot of storekeepers—and when that many people make up their minds to pitch in on the defence effort, things start happening.

JUST for instance, look how Canada's merchants are helping solve one of the biggest problems facing us right now. Seeing that dresses, shoes, pots and pans, kitchen ranges, radios, fountain pens, wrist watches, hats and dining-room tables keep flowing to the hands of the buying public without holding back the all-out defence effort in the nation's factories. That's a big job in any man's language—because uniforms, guns, bandages, truck tires, shell fuses, ships and planes have the right of way. Other countries, tried to meet the problem by turning to severe rationing, even of food and clothing. And that meant hardship, regimentation, sometimes even weakened morale.

BUT the retailers of Canada said, "We are the most progressive nation in the world, the nation that has everything. Let's do this job the right way, and to the government they said, "We know what the people of Canada want and need. It is our job to know for they've been telling us over our counters for years. As purchasing agents for the Canadian public, we can and shall tell the factories what the public wants, and what the public can easily and willingly do without. Thus we shall help provide vital extra manufacturing capacity for the country's defence needs.

YES, Your retail merchants are helping great plants to turn out more weapons to arm Canada and the Motherland. But that isn't all. From all over Canada retail merchants are being selected to manage Canada's own complicated supply-buying problem, and thousands are volunteering for procurement work in the armed services and in the many civilian defense bureaus.

RETAILERS for defence. No idle words for the men who run Canada's stores. They may not know "present arms" from "parade rest"—but they're not going to let waste delays and bottle-necks hamper Canada. Quickly and patriotically, your own retail merchant is working every day to make Canada strong and keep her free.

IN PEACE OR WAR YOUR RETAILER IS YOUR SERVICE OF SUPPLY.
HELP HIM TO HELP YOUR COUNTRY.

How to cut the cost of Heating Your Home

Building A Furnace Fire

Remember a new tip in your fireplace, and you will be an expert master if you will follow these simple steps. First, close the check damper and open the top damper. Then, the turn damper in the smoke pipe should be open. Leave a thin layer of ash about 1/2 inch deep spread evenly over the grate. This will prevent the first hot fire from the kindling from coming in contact with the grate bars and will also minimize the dropping of unburned coal into the ash-pan.

Spread about two inches of coal evenly over the layer of ash. Place kindling on top of this coal. This kindling may consist of lightly wedged newspapers, light dry wood, or charcoal. Next, light the kindling.

Clean Seed Means Improved Crops

The seed problem is entirely within the control of the farmer, states the Agricultural Supplies Board. "We-Time Production series (pamphlet No. 3) on 'Good Seed of Corn and its Importance'. In view of the important bearing of good seed on crop production, this farmer should ask himself: 'Is my present variety satisfactory and pure for the conditions peculiar to my farm? Is my seed, as pure and as strong and vital as it should be? Can it be cleaned and made into first-class seed?' If there is any doubt, as to these things, he should take the necessary steps as soon as possible to rectify them.

Good seed requires a thorough cleaning and grading to remove weed seeds and chaff as well as all light and straggled kernels. Improper cleaning of seed is a major cause of seed loss. It is not only a waste of money, but it also reduces the yield of the crop. The seed cleaning process should be done in a clean, dry place, and the seed should be stored in a cool, dry place. The seed should be tested for purity and vigor before it is used. The seed should be cleaned and graded in a clean, dry place, and the seed should be stored in a cool, dry place. ### Milking Machine And Milk Production

Studies conducted at the various Dominion Experimental Farms have shown that a milking machine has little or no effect upon the milk yield of a cow. The milk yield is determined by the health of the cow, the quality of the feed, and the care of the cow. The milking machine is a tool that can be used to improve the efficiency of the milking process, but it does not increase the milk yield. The milking machine should be used in a clean, dry place, and the milk should be stored in a cool, dry place. The milking machine should be tested for purity and vigor before it is used.

Electric Incubators, Battery Brooders Replace Nature in Raising Chicks

A greatly increased output of eggs contrasted with Great Britain, for the coming season will provide a steady influence to the Canadian egg market and electric brooders would be well-advised to take advantage of the prospects at the moment. Helmsmen of the Canadian Navy, their service rifles slung over their shoulders, stand guard at the wheel of a Japanese fishing vessel seized by West Coast authorities immediately after Canada declared war upon the Nipponese Empire.

Each boat was demobilized by the removal of some vital part of its motor. Now that the Government has decided to allow the owners to lease or sell their boats to white fishermen, these carefully tagged and stored parts will be replaced.

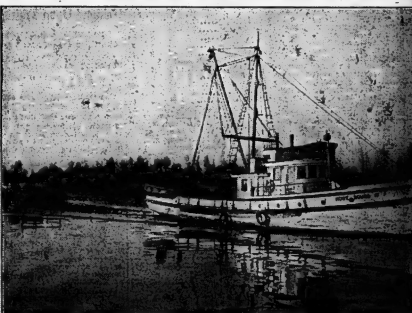

As Japanese fishing boats were rounded up by the Navy, owners were closely questioned. Most are Canadian citizens, have already volunteered for war work.

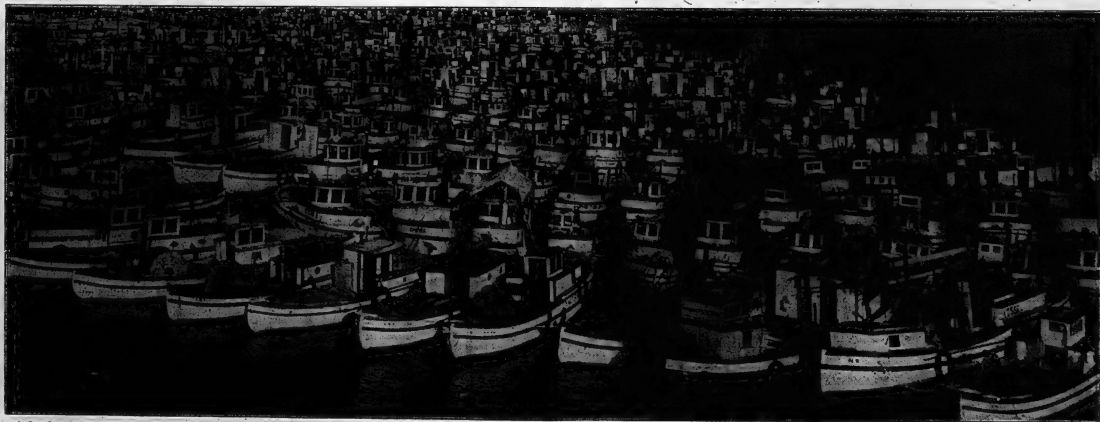

The Union Jack goes up on one of the Japanese fishing vessels immobilized by the Canadian Navy. Jap fishermen will not be allowed to operate during the war.

Japanese housewife explains to Canadian naval officer that her husband is at sea with his fishing boat. Scenes such as this were duplicated in all the Japanese settlements of the West Coast as the Navy started its thorough sweep.

A naval patrol vessel tows in a batch of Jap fishing boats. Owned by Japanese who are Canadian citizens, the boats were seized as a purely precautionary measure. They will be purchased or leased by Canadian fishermen for the duration.

A few hours after Canada went to war with Japan the Canadian Navy was rounding up all Pacific Coast fishing craft operated by persons of Japanese origin. It has now been announced that these craft, shown tied up at Steveston, on Vancouver Island, will be leased or bought from their owners and operated by white fishermen. Japs will not be allowed to sail in Canadian waters during the war. They will be permitted to serve in a special war work organization if they desire. The seizure of boats was done on a friendly basis. Many Jap fishermen have already volunteered to serve Canada in any war capacity.

CHAPTER XXIII

Was it very hot in the court or very cold? Elmer Cartwright could not be quite sure. Sometimes his face burned, as though with fever, and immediately after the delivery of the proceeding, Connolly's speech, she had gone back to the past—gone back through the whole romance again, from the day when that nice, capable lady came to the moment when that smooth-faced police officer had said with horrible truthfulness: "You are a warren for a hunter!"

For you Elmer Cartwright, you are not here on the charge of murder, said the judge, and I must warn you that anything you say will be taken down in writing and may be used, as evidence, at your trial.

Horrible, frightening flimsy—this felt caught up in a smooth, routine, well-oiled machine—in human, pedestrian.

And now she was, standing in the dock in the open place of publicity, with hundreds of eyes that were neither impersonal nor inhuman, staring upon her and staring.

Only the fact that she was not embarrassed, they kept at her eyes steadfastly turned away. "Be thoughtful!" he became—none—they knew what they were going to say. "Be thoughtful!" he became—none—they knew what they were going to say. "Be thoughtful!" he became—none—they knew what they were going to say.

Ottawa, Jan. 21 (CP)—The second troops in London declared today. These sources saw the fall of the city as a "great blow" to the Axis last night, as the signal for the beginning of the battle. They said they predicted would come some time before March. With the fall of Moscow, the German troops in the North from the highways leading from Moshkva were toward the city. The Russian troops were to be thrown into action without delay.

London military broke news estimated that 300,000 German troops had been sent to the city. The British reported the capture of Moshkva as a "great blow" to the Axis. The Russian high command will be forced to acknowledge to the world today, some of the most serious setbacks to the Russian high command.

There has been no general remark since our counter-attacks, and the German advance to the approaches. At that time the first attack was made on the armies which had been in the hands of the German since the start of the war. The second assembly of reserves was made and the high command was to see.

Mr. Churchill's 'Confidence'
There has been a great deal of discussion about the Far East recently. Prime Minister Churchill told the British Commons that he has confidence in the eventual victory in the theatre. Those who have followed Mr.
Churchill's career during this war know he shows confidence and to inspire it in the British people. This confidence he feels according to his words, "might be justified."

Mr. Churchill knows the situation and he knows the people and he knows the nation. He can take his word for it.

Japan's initial successes have been due to surprise for she struck while white still at peace with Britain and the United States. It must be remembered that Britain has many military forces.
Now Japan herself who is near home is forced to extend her forces throughout a vast area over much of the world.
This will show in her disposition of her strength.

Allied strength may be depended upon for some time. Japan is doing her utmost at this time for she must know that during this period will not last for a long time.

Members of the British Commons heard
Mr. Churchill say that he naturally shared the anxieties that are felt on the war in the Far East. "But I also share a growing conviction which I think might also be justified in the eventual outcome of this struggle."

He recognizes the situation and he knows that the answer of Britain and the United States will be Japan.

Secrecy in Journeys

Prime Minister Churchill's Atlantic journeys were kept so secret that the world and how well they were kept has been shown for the second time. First was the journey to the rendezvous with the Atlantic was drawn up and the second was his trip just before Christmas, his return taking place last week.
The first came as a surprise. The second was also a surprise. But the return trip which everyone knew had to be made was characterized by the same secrecy and secrecy which fell about Mr. Churchill and his doings after a certain time in Washington.

As a consequence of this well-kept secret the British Prime Minister was able to make his way home without knowledge of the world.

How important the Premier is to Britain and the fighting democratic front is indicated by the tumultuous welcome which he received on his arrival home.

Japan in the Plot

The war in the Pacific and the war in the Atlantic make one man, Hitler and Japan conspired on the latter's entry in the hope that it could be made to coincide with the German attack on Russia. The Germans to progress to Moscow. But the Russian and the British assaults on the Axe in Russia and in Libya started an area which have still been maintained after months and the Hitler-Tokyo plot materialized. There is no doubt that Hitler is gravely concerned about the situation in the two western campaigns. Japan must realize that she can't quickly get the cannot be so foolish as to overlook the time in the united nations' strength will pile up in the East. It is his plan to use the and the Middle East. Japan cannot look upon the German situation in Russia and China as matter for Japanese congratulation to Hitler.

Were the superfluities of a nation valued and made a perpetual tax or benevolence, there would be more harmless than poor, more choicer than choicer and enough to make for general besides—Penn.

Trust in God but keep your powder dry.
—Oliver Cromwell.

OURSELVES AND OTHERS...

A NEW YEAR'S RESOLVE

Let us be kind, the world has need of kindness—

The poor, the weak, the aged, the sorrowing.
Oh that the dawning of the year may kind us, Resolved each day to do some kindly thing.

A kindly word to cheer the broken-hearted,
A friendly smile is travelled on the lip.
A willing laugh for one from joy long-parted—

Will scatter sunshine in the dullest day.

The little child who seeks our fond caresses,
The folk who home who seek the pleasant miles.
The lonely folk may bring world-regret—

A kindness often by busy worldbeguile.

Go needs of kindness let us daily scatter—

A bountiful harvest we shall surely get.

Assured that in the glad and bright
New Year.

No pain will linger of a deep regret.
—Helen B. Anderson, Conson, Ont.

HUMOR AT PERIL HARBOUR

Despite the fact that death suddenly rained from his Pacific side on Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, on December 7, the well-known humor of the American doughboy and glib assistant. The Grand Tourist. The following story is told of a brawny Texan soldier riding atop a large truck loaded with ammunition. Around him Japanese bombs were spraying death in every direction. Machine-gun bullets from the invader plane splattered the highway and the truck was unscathed. As the truck jolted along the road he was playing a battered ukulele and singing.
The driver of the truck was a Texan on a Yankee warship lying at anchor in the harbor was an American sailor who was so previous to the attack had been placed in the ship's brig for various breaches of navy regulations. When the attack began he was released from battles and took his position at battle stations. A Jap bomb struck the ship and the sailor found himself in the waters of the harbor. He immediately struck the shore, landed, and was halted by a U.S.
marine guard duty.

The sailor was arrested for being on shore without a pass.

"GENERALLY" SPEAKING

"No general can be lucky unless he is bold. He must have a spirit of adventure;
a touch of the gambler in him. The general who allows himself to be bound and hampered by regulations is unlikely to win. The general who is a general in the field is a general in the field."

They are footloose and fancy free when the going becomes tough. They take risks and regulations when the tide goes against them like a make shade his

Further Representations Made to London and Washington by Australia
Melbourne, Jan. 23 (CP). — The Australian government has made further urgent representations to London and Washington, emphasizing the need for much stronger force in the Pacific to meet the extending Japanese attack.

In an emergency meeting of the war cabinet was held this morning presided over by Deputy Prime Minister Francis Forde in the absence of Prime Minister Curtin, who is travelling in western Australia. The general position in Malaya and New Guinea and the strengthening of defenses was reviewed.

For the first time, heard by radio, Forde said:
"For the first time in history Australian territory, over British and New Guinea, and the Solomon Islands has been attacked, and we are fighting on our shores."

The Australian militia is probably being in battle for the first time.
"The enemy intends to get something out of this, but the Australian militia."

"We can be certain that each of the day for the transoceanic attack on Hawaii was marked down on Japanese plans, so is the planned attack on the Australian coast and towns."

"There can be no doubt that we shall have the rest of the campaign about the coast of this country."

London, Jan. 23 (CP). — Japanese attacks on British possessions in New Guinea and New Caledonia have been such that the British government will not meet a direct threat, but this stage of the campaign, a British official said.

"The Japanese could launch a massive attack on the coast of Australia, but this is not a possibility at present," he said.

This source added the word would give the Japanese more opportunity in their efforts to achieve air and air control of the South Pacific and other parts in Australia, but this is not a possibility at present, he said.

Japan's immediate objective, however, he said, and other parts in Australia, but this is not a possibility at present, he said.

Refinishing of Household Equipment And Auto Body Repairs a Specialty Of Campbell's Auto Paint Shop

With busy streets and from, buses being more often the job of the motorist as the winter progress, the number of traffic accidents resulting in dented fenders and twisted bodies naturally increases.

Of course the individual motorist considers himself as being immune from such mishaps as adding to the car body, but he cannot guarantee the ability nor the safety of the other driver. The result is that the other driver is responsible for dented fenders.

Whenever this happens the thought which immediately strikes the party involved is "where can I get the damage repaired with assurance of obtaining a job that will compare with the original finish?"

No common have become the dented and scraped fender which this garage for the repair of such damage has become up an almost every look. Only specialists with experience, however, can be expected to repair dented fenders so as to only compare with the original factory job.

And that's why Campbell's Auto Paint Shop is one of the most popular places in the city to get dented fenders and to get twisted bodies refinished. The work is done by experienced mechanics can be depended upon to give the car a finish demanded by a discriminating public.

Old Weapons Into New

The Birmingham Post
A fine gesture has been made by the Birmingham Post, which has announced the gift of salvaged by bringing out treasured armaments, such as massive brass vases, to be cast with dignity a piece into the crucible of the war effort.

All metal articles reaching the Salvage Department works are now of course taken out eventually transmuted into munitions, but before the war so many curious objects stored on the conveyor belt in fantastic variety, that a notable museum was built up at the Birmingham Street works of the Salvage Department.

From the wide range of weapons of war fished out of city dumps, before repurposed equipment had been distributed in the earlier days of the war, numbers of the Salvage Department House Guard detachment were able to practice with antiquated revolvers and rifles, even armed with those weapons, obviously real antique value, have disappeared since sent back by the detachment, when the owner could be traced, for consumption of the "mop up" division.

But it is a long time in every corner of the globe, antiques, and blunderbusses, and the like, are being sent to the front.

From the last war there came a steady supply of souvenirs, smuggled into the country, and some of these had at last departed. But such a steady supply of souvenirs, smuggled into the country, and some of these had at last departed.

Raymond sketches characters from life Curious model (right) for Daily Flash's sweetheart in Patsy Quinn, 17, whose Walter Thornton signed up after seeing her Florida bathing beach picture in a rotogravure section. Pat lives with her mother in Arlington, N. J.

Raymond has to have a large library for research, for no matter how fantastic the adventures, Flash's following, always ready with criticism, expect his machines and actions to be plausible and "possible."

Above it is a fact that comic strips influence fashions; and Raymond takes great care with costume and dress details. Below, Pat, who's seeing how she'll look in the funny papers, her posing period over, is a blonde strip fan. She also models for style magazines.

OBVIOUSLY, every artist paints, chisels, etches or composes some of his own copyreply in his work. Even Dali. Even an artist is that most fantastic and popular of all genres, the comic strip. Most popular is not overstated. A number of newspaper comic strips have larger and more composition following than any regular radio program, then any movie star. Flash Gordon is one.

Flash Gordon is young, handsome, an athletic whizkid in Jules Verne-like adventures. "Flash" creator, Alex Raymond, a young, handsome, he got his higher education on an athletic scholarship. In boyhood, when his playmates had cowboy, detective or fireman second selves, Alex had a dream existence soaring the world in 80 days, voyaging 20,000 leagues under the sea, hurrying space. That is, he grew up on Jules Verne's books. Nothing has given him more satisfaction than to be called "the modern Jules Verne."

Like Verne, Raymond began a whole new school of supermen-creations, but none of the copy-actors on the comic strip stage have ever caught up with Flash Gordon, whose named means of transit is a rocket-ship (above).

If there hadn't been a 1929, Raymond might have been a broker. It made him broke. A neighbor, Russ Westover, who draws Little the Teller, envious of Alex's skill with pen and pencil, suggested he try using it as a comic artist. Raymond did, first turned out "Grog" panels, then developed an idea born of his devotion to Jules Verne—Flash Gordon. One reward is this impressive Connecticut home. You see him with his wife.

Raymond can get an immediate reaction from two comics fans in his own home. His son, Alex, Jr., 9, and daughter, Lynn, 10, follow numberless strips and are frank in their criticism of Dad's work. (Junior likes Mandrake better; Lynn prefers Blondie.) The Raymonds also have another child too young for comics.

Another reward is the appreciation of a vast public, which continuously makes its influence felt in letters. An artist can only draw a strip, a newspaper can only publish it; the public alone decides whether it continues and how long.

Defenders Placed On 50-Mile Limit Near Sirte Gulf

British Patrol Operating Forward Of This Line Says British Communique

R. A. F. ACTIVE

Chin, Jan. 23 (AP)—Lt.-Col. Brian Tennant's armored column which pushed British tanks back 130 miles in three days, have been stopped for the past 48 hours and, apparently, have reached an impasse in their Libyan offensive.

A communique placed the British forces on a 50-mile line from Shab, near the eastern shore of the Gulf of Sirte, to a point 10 miles from Shab.

This was the same zone as an armored thrust when the communists broke the German line in the north and southward of Khartoum in a double advance from the Asmara-Agobah-Comah triangle where a heavy tank battle was fought during the week-end.

British armor patrols also are operating forward of this line, the communique said, and Royal Air Force bombers and fighter forces are in the air over the desert.

Clear Future Glimpsed
The communique said it now was possible to give a clearer picture of the situation than the week-end.

"The seven days' highly mobile operations have been carried out with skill and determination over a wide area of the desert, and the main state of the advance being made as a result of this phase of the communique said.

"The heavy guns of the road cleared by the British armor, and the fluid character of the fighting made it possible to move forward, and any one area and the operations required to maintain a series of engagements between the enemy's armor and our own."

There were fought "with great tenacity" on both sides the communique indicated.

It was pointed out that British troops are in touch with the enemy's armor in the desert from Shab to the northeast of Shab with petrol will forward to the south.

The Canadian Press is the largest news organization in Canada and is the largest news organization in the world.

Here were men independent enough to speak and possessed of sanity of vision and loyalty to democracy to pledge their lives to the cause of 444,000,000 free men and women whose liberty dates back to the very foundations of the race they today stand united against the barbarism of the world's greatest war-torn nations.

While half Europe's nations must submit to the rule of the Axis pestilence.

These men were not syrophants, self-seekers, please like the others who make up the Hitler gang or those so-called representatives who meet in Hitler's Reichstag to yell "Ja" to every word of the vile propaganda.

Britain's Commons is the citadel and fortress of liberty.

Solutions are proud of their great parliamentary institution.

The Prime Minister acknowledged with a smile the cheers of the members on the result of the vote of honest men, who are loyal to their trust, as representatives of the British people and expressed their will and heart. He knew they were the men that they are fighting for honor and justice and the maintenance of the ideal of freedom.

What a proof of democracy! Democracy can do things it can achieve because it can do things at this time, it is the property of the rest of the united nations which will be the ultimate end of the crimes of Hitler and his associates.

WE THAT ARE FREE

We that are free know how we are blest

With happiness, Not that we are so rich, but that the rest

Have so much less.

We pay, God knows, yet gladly, for the sake

Of our own state;

We are not robbed with insolence to make

The robber great.

Our sons face risk 'beyond belief, yet they Give bomb for bomb;

Our homes have known grim danger, night and day,

Not martyrdom,

To whil half Europe's nations must submit

To spoil and scorn,

And multitudes flipp'd, asking how much

'Has to be borne,

Their utmost deed accomplishes no good

Save a bold gesture:

They pay for protest with the dear heart's blood

Of the protester.

We cannot bid them multiply the cost

Of precious lives;

Yet in fierce Winter under, mire and frost

Trail seed survivors.

Ye that endure, from Poland back to France,

Soon dawn the day

When may challenge you to take your chance

And rise and slay!

—Stephen Gwynn, in the London Sunday Times.

A HINT FOR AFTER DINNER SPEAKERS

A negro met an acquaintance of his, also colored, on the street one day and was surprised to see that his friend had on a new suit, new hat, new shoes and other evidences of prosperity.

"Sambo—" "Hey, boy, how come you got a job?"

"Sambo—" "What's it?"

"Henry—" "I got somethin' better'n any job." "It's a profession."

"Sambo—" "What's it?"

"Henry—" "It's an orator."

"Sambo—" "What's an orator?"

"Sambo—" "Don't you know? Well, I'll tell you what an orator is. If you was to walk up to an ordinary nigger and ask him how much was two and two, he'd say 'four' but if you was to ask one of the orators howmuch was two and two, he'd say, 'when in de course of human events it has become necessary to take de numerical rididdle in de course of human events, de de second deendment and add it to de figure two, I says unto you and I says it without fear of successful contradiction, de figure two will inevitably be four.' Dat's an orator."

OR SARDINES

"Our idea of an understanding wife," says Barnacle Bill, "is one who has the pork chops ready when you come home from fishing."

WOULDN'T BE SURPRISED

"Reading the various church reports," ruminated the bulletin board philosopher, "leads me to believe that many folks put a nickel on the collection plate and they will have enough change left to tip the waiter a quarter."

THE RIGHT ANSWER

"Then there is the story of the man in the mid-west who attended a party at a friend's house. Some one suggested a game of 'riddles.' Asked what the greatest riddle in the world was he replied, 'after a few moments' thought, 'I give up.' A minute later he dropped dead. The next night his wife furnished the answer to the question—'Life.'"
